

NZ Linguistic Society conference 2022
University of Otago, December 8–9, 2022

Call for papers

The University of Otago is pleased to be hosting the NZ Linguistic Society conference December 8–9, 2022, to be preceded by a workshop on Approaches to the Linguistic Study of Narrative on the afternoon of 7 December.

Conference website: <https://nzlingsoc.org/conference/conference-2022/>

Submission Guidelines

Abstracts should be maximum of 400 words (not including references). Please also include 3 to 5 keywords and a 50 word bio for each author.

Abstracts must be submitted in PDF format by email to nzlsconference2022@gmail.com.

Abstract deadline: 21 October 2022
Notification: 1 November 2022

List of Topics

The conference theme will be Narrative, broadly construed. Story and narrative are fundamental to human cognition, identity, and linguistic interactions. We welcome proposals that fit within this theme, as well as more general linguistic topics, including but not restricted to:

- Narrative, discourse, and identity
- Language, gender and sexuality
- Language teaching and learning
- Language maintenance and revitalisation
- Māori and Pacific linguistics
- Languages of New Zealand
- Computational methods and approaches to languages
- Language variation and change
- Sociopragmatics/meaning in interaction
- Psycholinguistic investigations

Venue

The conference will be hosted at the Dunedin Campus of the University of Otago, and online presentation options will be available for those who cannot travel.

Contact

All questions about NZLS 2022 should be emailed to nzlsconference2022@gmail.com